Roundsman Dailey's Accuser the First Witness Called.

She Tells Her Pitiful Tale in a Convincing Manner,

Strong Opening Address by Assistant District-Attorney Weeks,

The trial of Roundsman Mathew F. Dalley arged with criminally assaulting pretty sixteen-year-old Mamie Hannan in the back room of Joe Geller's saloon, at Pitt and Broome streets, on March 26 last, was actually begun in Part II. of General Sessions this morning before Recorder Smyth and a jury of twelve practical buliness men.

Among the witnesses subponned by Lawyers Friend & House, for the defense, is Henry Cohen, a tailor, of 512 Grand street.
It is said that Assistant District-Attorney Weeks had also subponned cohen, unders adding that his order book would show that bailey had ordered a suit of clothes for a man who was to appear as a witness in his behalf, and, it is alleged, testify against the reputation of Mainle Hannan.
Cohen came to court yesterday with his order book, which Messrs. Friend & House put away in their effice safe for safe-keeping.
Learning this, Mr. Weeks asked Recorder rmyth for an attachment for the book, but on Lawyer House's declaration that the book would remain in his safe until needed in the trial, the Recorder declined to issue an atlachment.

complainent, Mamie Hannan, has caused many of the court attaches, as well as unilorined policemen, whose duties bring them to the brown-stone building, to express much sympathy, while for Dailey they are not backward in expressing their disapprobation.
There were other policemen in court this morning, however, who made slurring remarks about the unfortunate girl and openly expressed their sympathy with Dailey.
They were witnesses for the accused roundaman and by their testimony he expects to establish his alits.

The Principal Witnesses. Among Dailey's witnesses present was sergt. Albert W. McDonald, who, Mamie claims, was present when the alleged assault was committed. He was in full uniform. Another witness in court was Lizzie Lawdre, Manne's principal witness, who was also present when the sileged assault was committed, and whose attendance at Dailey's police court examination was secured by an police court examination was secured by an ORLD reporter after the repeated s of Capt. Long before court opened there was a crowd of morbidly curious people in the hall stricting to gain admittance. Nearly every one except witnesses, newspaper men and lawyers were excluded, and yet the court and awyers were excluded, and yet the court sproceedings were begun. Among the special cors were two or three women hot witnesses.

The Opening Address.

It was 11.20 when Recorder Smyth opened court and Assistant District-Attorney Weeks began his opening address to the jury. He bewailed his ubsagreeable lask in being forced to prosecute a case of the character of that he was about to undertake, "because we would like to believe that in the breast of every one there is an inherent spark of maniness."
